1. Introduction

- 1.1 Personal Data is any information that allows a living individual to be identified. It may include names, contact addresses or similar information, photographs, etc. It may include information that is not itself personal data but could be combined with other information to identify an individual e.g. a cross-referenced record in a filing system. It also includes any expression of opinion about an individual.
- 1.2 The Roald Dahl Museum and Story Centre (RDMSC, The Museum, “we”, “our”, “us”) is committed to protecting the privacy of personal data about you that we may hold, by following the principles of protecting and processing personal data as laid out in the General Data Protection Regulation (EU) 2015/679 (GDPR). For the purposes of this privacy notice we are the data controller.
- 1.3 ‘Processing’ personal data simply means using it in some way.
- 1.4 This privacy notice describes how we collect and use personal information about you during and after your application to work with us. Privacy notices like this are designed to make you aware of how and why we are using such information.
- 1.5 We have used the guidance from the UK Information Commissioner’s Office (ICO) on GDPR¹ to produce this notice. The ICO guidance offers further depth to and illustrative examples for many of the issues covered in this notice.

2. Personal Data protection principles

- 2.1 The principles of protecting and using personal data laid out in the GDPR state that the personal information we hold about individuals (known as ‘data subjects’) must be:
- 2.1.1 Used lawfully, fairly and in a transparent way
 - 2.1.2 Collected only for valid, specified purposes that we have clearly explained (through relevant Privacy Notices including this one) and not used in any way that is incompatible with those purposes
 - 2.1.3 Relevant to the specified purposes and limited to what is necessary for those purposes
 - 2.1.4 Accurate and kept up to date
 - 2.1.5 Kept only as long as necessary for the specified purposes
 - 2.1.6 Kept securely

- 2.1.7 Made available to data subjects on request to allow you to exercise your rights in relation to your personal data.

3. The kind of information about you that we collect store and use

3.1 As someone who is applying to work with RDMSC, we do need to collect and use information about you as an individual. We may typically collect, store and use the following types of personal information about our job candidates:

- 3.1.1 The information you provide on our RDMSC application form: name, title, addresses, telephone numbers and personal email addresses, qualifications and educational establishments attended, your employment history
- 3.1.2 Any additional information you provide in a CV and covering letter
- 3.1.3 Any information (opinion) we collect through the interview process
- 3.1.4 Any information (opinion) we collect following interviews, from taking up references.

3.2 If you are offered the job, we may collect, store and use sensitive personal information about you during the later stages of a recruitment process, including information about your health (including health and sickness records), in order to be certain that we can accommodate any specific needs you may have.

4. How is your personal information collected?

4.1 We collect personal information about job candidates through the application and recruitment process, either directly from you as a candidate, or sometimes from an employment agency.

4.2 We may sometimes collect additional information from third parties including former employers e.g. as referees. This will usually only be the case for candidates on the verge of being offered a job, subject to references.

5. How we will use information about you

5.1 We will only use your personal information in a lawful way. The lawful basis for using personal information about job candidates is that it is in our legitimate interests to:

- 5.1.1 Assess your suitability for a role.
- 5.1.2 Keep you informed about the recruitment process
- 5.1.3 Keep records about our recruitment process to support the consistency and quality of our own procedures.

5.2 If we collect, store and use more sensitive personal information we need to have an even stronger basis for doing so. Typically, this would require at least one of the following to be in place first:

5.2.1 Your explicit written consent

5.2.2 A situation where we need to carry out our legal obligations or exercise rights in connection with employment

5.2.3 A situation where it is needed in the public interest, such as for equal opportunities monitoring

5.2.4 Where you have already made the information public.

5.3 We do not use automated data processing in relation to job candidates.

6. Sharing personal data

6.1 As part of our security measures, access to personal information held by the Museum will be limited to those members of Museum staff or volunteers who have a direct role in using the data.

6.2 We will only share the personal data we hold about you with third parties such as a recruitment agency, if that is how we received your application. We will only share the personal data we hold about you with third parties when there is a lawful reason to do so, it is in line with the specified purposes for that data, and the third party has appropriate security measures in place.

7. Storing personal data

7.1 Your personal data will only be kept for six months after we have told you whether you have been appointed to the job.

7.2 We keep your personal information for that period so that we can show, in the event of a legal claim, that we have not discriminated against candidates and that we have conducted the recruitment exercise in a fair and transparent way. After this period, we will securely destroy your personal information in accordance with our Data Management and Retention Schedule.

8. Your rights in relation to your personal information

8.1 By law you have certain rights in relation to your own personal information:

8.1.1 The right to be informed about whether and how we may be processing your personal data

8.1.2 The right of access to your own personal data

8.1.3 The right to rectification if the information we have is inaccurate

- 8.1.4 The right to erasure if there is no longer a lawful reason for us to retain the data e.g. if consent was the lawful reason, and consent is withdrawn. This is also known as 'the right to be forgotten'.
- 8.1.5 The right to restrict processing e.g. if the accuracy of your data is being challenged, you can request your data is not processed until that situation is resolved
- 8.1.6 The right to data portability, when data has been provided in an easily transferable machine-readable format
- 8.1.7 The right to object to the processing of your personal data at all, especially in relation to direct marketing
- 8.1.8 Rights in relation to automated decision making and profiling.

8.2 If you want to exercise any of these rights, or if you have any questions about this privacy notice or how we handle your personal information, please contact the Museum Director; contact details are at the top of this document.
